Key Characteristics	The three-way Pinot Gris, Gewurztraminer, Riesling blend is a traditional and much loved blend in the Alsatian region of France and with good reason. These varieties of often interplanted within the same vineyard in Alsace and make lovely, aromatic wines that are both attractive in their youth but can gain greater complexity with bottle age. Whilst we are not interested in producing a copy-cat wine, this style has been our inspiration in producing this relatively new wine at Printhie. The 2024 is the second release. Named after the Andesite volcanic origin soil that pre-dominates in the vineyard.
Tasting Notes	Pale colour and intensely aromatic. The less fruit intense Pinot Gris adds body and texture, the Gewurztraminer provides aromatic lift and the Riesling provides citrus and an acid backbone. Genuine fruit complexity. Alluring aromatics. Fine textural tannins elongate the palate flavour. A hint of natural residual sugar adds richness. Very more-ish.
Analysis	Alc – 12.9%, pH - 3.33, TA – 6gL.5, RS – 3.8gL
Cellaring	Very appealing young and fresh. However, this wine will evolve in the cellar for a good decade. The choice is yours.
